FOR PARENTS

It takes a village to raise a child. When you are able to forge positive partnerships with your child's teachers, your child ultimately benefits. Your child's teachers are a great source of information. Be open to their feedback and observations about your child so that you can all work hand in hand to support your child.

Don't just ask about your child's grades because the report book can tell you that. Find out about your child's overall well-being too.

Here are some questions you may ask the teachers:

1

How does my child treat others around him/her?

2

How well does my child interact with his/her friends?

3

What are my child's strengths?

4

How can I develop my child's interests?

5

How can we work together to support my child?

Our children succeed when parents and schools work hand in hand.
